

Research Article

Knowledge of tomato cultivation technologies among tribal women

■ RASHMI DAVE, NARPAT SINGH AND G.P. NAROLIA

ARTICLE CHRONICLE :

Received :

17.08.2013;

Revised :

05.10.2013;

Accepted :

12.10.2013

SUMMARY : To study the knowledge of tribal women for tomato cultivation technologies, ten villages from two Panchayat Samities i.e. Garhi and Talwara in tribal dominated Banswara district of Rajasthan were selected for the study purpose. With the specific objective entitled the impact of National Agricultural Innovation Project in terms of knowledge of tomato cultivation technologies by the tribal women. The project had enhanced their knowledge and made them enable in adopting new innovations in the field of agriculture.

How to cite this article : Dave, Rashmi, Singh, Narpata and Narolia, G.P. (2013). Knowledge of tomato cultivation technologies among tribal women. Agric. Update, 8(4): 591-595.

KEY WORDS :

Knowledge, Tribal Women, Tomato cultivation technologies, National Agricultural Innovation Project

Author for correspondence :

NARPAT SINGH

Krishi Vigyan Kendra
(MPUAT) BANSWARA
(RAJASTHAN) INDIA
Email: narpata.rca@gmail.com

See end of the article for authors' affiliations